Forecast for Sunday 16 Jun 2024

Weather: Largely dry with sunny spells for most during today. However, a risk of isolated showers developing, with a low risk of these being heavy and thundery. The showers will tend to ease during the afternoon. Possibly some valley fog patches developing towards midnight.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 60% improving to 90% or more.

Low cloud and visibility: Areas of cloud with base around 500-600m at first. However, bases lifting largely above summits during the morning, although some brief lower bases possible in any heavier showers. Generally very good visibility outside showers, with brief reductions in showers, and very poor in any low cloud covering the hills.
